I am very lonely at home. I do not work and I am there almost 90% of the time by myself. I like where I live. It is very quiet and the people next door are nice, but we don't do things together. I want to do things with other people, but not just online things. Me and my online friends like talking to each other and we play games together too. I think we would like to hang out together too. I also am a little overweight, and it might be good for me to ride a bicycle because I might lose some weight. Me and my friends can do other things together too. My friends have bicycles and we can even ride our bikes together and go to a show. I won't have to wait on people to take me places either. Because I don't live near a bus stop, having a bike would help me be more in the community with others that I like to be with.
